

Faith Taylor Griffaw

I was born February 5, 1991 in New Albany, Indiana. I am a 20 year old junior at the University of Indianapolis. I graduated from New Albany High School in 2009 with a 4.0. I played Varsity softball all four years in high school. One of my greatest achievements is receiving the award for Hoosier Hills All-Conference in 2007 and 2008 for softball. At the University of Indianapolis I play Intramurals and volunteer with the Intercollegiate YMCA. This past spring break I went on a service trip to Jamaica, it was the most rewarding experience of my life.

Currently at the University of Indianapolis I am studying psychology with a minor in marketing. In much of my free time, I volunteer. I have to complete 900 service hours this year to fill the requirements with my job through AmeriCorps. To fill many of these hours I work with children living in Section 8 housing communities. Through volunteering with these children I have learned that I want to help these children for the rest of my life. There are many children in the city of Indianapolis that could use the help that I want to offer. This scholarship will allow me to continue my education in receiving a master's degree so that I could one day council at-risk youth.
