

My name is Kyle Dunleavy and I am a senior at DePaul University earning a Bachelor of the Arts degree in Digital Cinema with minors in History and Irish Studies.

After graduation I plan to focus on a career in either film or television production. This past fall I interned for a company called Towers Productions that produces shows for the Discovery and History Channels, allowing me a first chance experience with professional producing. In most of my spare time I am busy either producing or shooting other student's films.

Currently, my friends and I have started our own little production company called Rhapsody Productions doing short films, promotional films, advertisements and graphics. I hope after graduation to continue to pursue a career in this desired field.